

'Redesign of communal space' - Granary Square, designed by The Fountain Workshop, transforms into a vibrant interactive space with fountains that create a spectacular light show at dusk, and provide endless fun for visitors, especially children, during summer. The design brings together modern playfulness and still holds visual effects, making it a key feature of King's Cross' revitalization.

space that can be stepped into 'communal space'

(Are the dotted lines made by people or are they designed?) This is no longer 'personal space' but 'communal space' Hal (1963): 'personal space' theory. Space is not fixed. It changes depending on how people use it.

'How to test Boundaries?'

Private? Community?

★ Granary Square
N1C 4NB
LONDON

"Where are the boundaries of imagination?
Where are the boundaries of space?
Where are the boundaries of human behavior?
Where are the boundaries of the human mind?
A sense of spatial belonging.
Where are the boundaries of discipline?"

